RUN TO BE SAFE AND SOUND.

Two years ago, I was with my friends in Tendillas square in Córdoba. We had been all the afternoon in our school and after that we decided to buy something to have a snack, and we were in the square until a skinhead group appeared.

They were sitting with us and they began to drink alcohol and show us their bottles. We sat up and we left the square when suddenly one of us shouted: ^{stood} Cheers ^{hurrah for} with communism! All of us saw ^{him} ~~he~~ when the skinhead group sat up quickly and they run towards us. Immediately we started to run in all directions and we stopped when we were sure the coast was clear.

This experience showed us that we must think what we say, and since that moment, we ^{are} never going out with that person. ~~It~~ was really frightening. ^{never go}
